The 6th annual Dallas Gallery Day will be from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday. The event will feature over 20 participating spaces. Newcomers to the event include Ginger Fox Gallery and Jen Mauldin Gallery in Bishop Arts along with Bivins Gallery in Uptown, and the Goss-Michael Foundation returns to the mix for the first time in their new space on Monitor.

The Gallery Day T-shirt, which is free to the first 15 people arriving at any of the participating spaces, was designed by Philadelphia-based artist Kyle Confehr.

An after party will be from 6 to 8 p.m. at Site 131, 131 Payne St. Find more at dallasgallery-day.com.
